

foods for dinner. The top of the evening was the folkdance show. We could also folkdance, if we wanted to. Next day we could hike the Gorge of Turda, but unfortunately the weather was rainy and the rocks slippery.. I wasn't brave enough to hike, so I went back to the bus. After lunch we visited the Ethnographic Museum in Torockó. Then we had free time, so we could buy souvenirs. In the evening we had free time, so we played bowling in the Caribic again. On Wednesday morning we said goodbye to everyone. We spent the whole day by travelling, but we stopped to visit the Bran Castle, and to have lunch. We arrived at Galati at about 10 o'clock. Our host family took us home. My new host also was very kind we had a chat until 2 o'clock at night. The following day we visited our hosts' school in Galati, where we visited the art classes. Then we went to the V.A. Urerchia Library and we also visited the local culture centre where the Romanian culture (traditional dishes, dances, and traditional costumes) was introduced. They danced Romanian folkdance, later we could join too. After lunch we strolled in the city. There was a show in the evening. That show was beautiful and awesome, I really enjoyed that. The students in that school are very talented. On the show they danced, sang, and played on a lot of musical instruments, and there was a fashion show too. On the fashion show all of the nationalities showed their traditional costumes and details in a different and modern way. I loved those clothes, because they were incredibly nice and creative. On 4th October we spent the whole day on a boat on the Danube. That was very interesting and the view was also beautiful. We had lunch on the boat. In the evening there was a farewell party. We played bowling and went to a pub, there we danced a lot (that was too much for me.) At the end of the party everyone said goodbye. We could sleep just about an hour, so I was very tired in the morning, but it wasn't a problem because this way I could sleep on the bus.

That was a wonderful trip and a great experience. I love getting to know other people and I also love travelling, so this Comenius Programme was a perfect programme for me.